  - Heather Kirksey prepared a slide deck to be shared with communities
  - We are bad at re-sharing updates, especially on LinkedIn
  - o blog post on format
    - What is the WIIFM? Overall or community specific?
    - focus on open and collaborative
    - Pano Xinos has the "convince your boss" messaging
    - share as link in blog post and post as link in the green box
    - Ranny Haiby will do the initial writeup
    - Scot Steele will be on the byline for the post.
- Day 1
  - $^{\circ}\;$  Curated by the program committee
    - General technical problems that need to be solved together
  - $^{\circ}\,\,$  What would be the follow-up after the discussion?
  - Owners will be assigned for each topic, to keep the discussion moving and update on the next D&TF
  - Sessions should include a recap of progress up to now
- Deadline for November D&TF session submission:
  - o Friday, October 28th
- Setting a date for Q1/23 virtual event
  - O Depends on Lunar New Year January 21-27
  - Mid/late February might be the most appropriate time
    - What about MWC Barcelona? Do we have overlapping audience?

Al - Heather Kirksey - Add day-1 session guidelines to the top of the session submission page - 2022 LFN Developer Event Topics November
Al - Heather Kirksey - Ask Emily Ruf what is the earliest time we can get the rooms, so we can start early, especially on Friday when folks tend to leave early
Al - Heather Kirksey - Edit slide deck and distribute to this committee
Al - Heather Kirksey, Ranny Haiby - Complete review of blog post
Al - All project reps - Go back to your community and share messaging about the format.
